

College of Health Sciences Newsletter

Volume 6, Issue 8 April 2017

IPE Day was a hit again this year, attracting a crowd of more than 170 to the Big Blue Room at the Ted Constant Center. Below, Journalist Sam Quinones gives his take on the opioid crisis.

IPE Day addresses opioid epidemic

This year's Interprofessional Education Day, held on March 29 at the Ted Constant Center, was a resounding success thanks to the efforts of many. The event drew more than 170 attendees.

Thank you faculty and students, who participated as well as served as volunteer facilitators and volunteer medical readers. Thanks to the Center for Learning and Teaching as well as our institutional collaborators including EVMS, the Hampton University School of Pharmacy, and Norfolk State University's Ethelyn R. Strong School of Social Work.

Keynote speaker Sam Quinones, an American journalist from Los Angeles, spoke about his book "Dream Land," which took a deep, dark look at the opiate crisis and its effect on a small Rust Belt town in Ohio. Quinones used his intimate knowledge honed by years of investigative reporting to present an expert overview of the health, sociological, and policy implications of the U.S. opioid use and misuse epidemic.

Spring brings burst of college activity

Admitted Students' Day was a busy Saturday for the College of Heb _ ' - - ©

When: Thursday, April 27, 2017, 6-9 p.m.
Where: 5444 Greenwich Road, Virginia Beach
How much: Alumni, faculty, friends & guests: $35

Donations save lives

A big “Thank You” from the Medical Laboratory Science Student Association to everyone who donated, supported, helped advertise and recruit donors for the annual MLSSA blood drive on March 21 – you are all awesome! If you haven’t heard yet, there were 85 units of blood collected, which is estimated to potentially save up to 255 lives!

Hampton Roads Heroin Working Group, used her personal experience to compel IPE Day participants to see the complexity of addiction and charged them to alter clinical practice to more effectively help those persons, families, and communities affected by the crisis.

IPE Day 2018 is scheduled for March 28, 2018. The faculty and

By Gem Morido

Hats off to Assistant Professor Ann Bruhn and

Please join us in celebrating this important milestone of 30 years of academic excellence by showing your support for the College of Health Sciences today. Every gift makes a difference and helps us achieve our vision of advancing healthcare education and research through interdisciplinary and global collaborations.

To make your gift online, please visit www.odu.edu/efgive

Share your anniversary pledge on Instagram (@oducohs) or Twitter! @COHS16 #COHS30

We would like to wish Angelica Walker much success on her move to Washington, D.C. She will be the new Meetings and Marketing Coordinator for the American Public Health

